Inside TV

For your convenience—a terse weekly report on what the well-informed video viewer should know.

Advance Tips on Shows: Gayelord Hauser, the well-known nutritionist and author of the best-selling Look Younger, Live Longer, will bow as star of his own 15-minute show over ❼ beginning Wednesday, October 31, at 1 p.m. The program will be on each Wednesday and Friday thereafter. . . . Another new ❼ show is Betty Crocker Star Time. With Adelaide Hawley in the leading role, the program will be on every Saturday from noon to 12:30 p.m., the time formerly occupied by Two Girls Named Smith. . . . Jimmy Durante's leading guest on The All-Star Revue November 3 will be Margaret Truman. . . . The movies' Wanda Hendrix and Gig Young will co-star in Rewrite for Love on Bigelow Theater November 1. It's a romance about a Swedish nurse and a Hollywood producer. . . . The half-hour operatic series, Opera Cameos, will return to ⓫ Sunday, November 4, at 7:30 p.m. . . . NBC-TV has signed up William Bendix for a number of guest shots. . . . Jack Benny's first show of the season will come over ❷ Sunday, November 4, from 7:30 to 8 p.m. . . . Jacques Offenbach's R.S.V.P. will be presented in ❹'s opera-in-English series on Thursday, November 1.

TV's Week: Television has had practically no effect on newspaper circulation, declared the New York State Circulation Managers' Assn., and Associated Press managers. . . . Geneva, Switzerland, saw a demonstration of large-screen theater television in color. The CBS color system was used in conjunction with the Swiss Eidophor method of projection. 20th Century-Fox has big plans for showing, via this method, enormously costly and stupendous shows. . . . The Federal grand jury, looking into the monopoly aspects of boxing, said it would investigate the sale of exclusive TV fight rights to theaters. . . . A series of home study high-school courses was started by ⓫. Called The Living Blackboard, it's presented Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 10:45 to 11 a.m.

U. S. to the Rescue! The Justice Department has fired the opening gun in a campaign to stop the restriction of sports telecasts — a suit against the National Football League. The Attorney General contends that the league has violated the anti-trust laws by ruling that no league-member may allow its games to be telecast or broadcast into any area where another league member is playing a game. The Attorney General holds that each football club should be allowed "to determine for itself whether and on what terms it will sell its broadcast and telecast rights."

Program Possibilities: Dave Garroway may be emcee of an NBC-TV 7 to 9 a.m. — and we mean a.m. — program to be called The

Garroway

Rise and Shine Revue. . . . The famed radio show of some years back, Al Pearce and His Gang, may be revived on video by NBC. . . . CBS would like to have Claudette Colbert star in a half-hour weekly series called Vanity and Mrs. Fair. . . . The same network is negotiating with the Ritz Brothers for a show and is planning on a TV version of Raymond Chandler's Philip Marlowe private sleuth radio series. . . . It's rumored that Robert Q. Lewis' The Show Goes On and Faye Emerson's Wonderful Town will cease or change times.

Gripe of the Week

Why does Bill Slater on Twenty Questions so obviously ignore Johnny McPhee and act so nasty when Johnny does get the answer? We like the program but are fed up with Bill Slater's treatment of Johnny.—Two Disgusted Viewers.

The Verse Boner Yet

Alexander Graham Bell
Would have shared my delight
At the amusing boner
Committed Tuesday night.
On Armstrong Theater,
When the phone connection was gone—
The voice on the other end

[We're sending you two tickets for what you said. You're a real boner-catcher. Congratulations!
—ED.]

No Boner

I noted a boner on Boston Blackie. The criminals, after beating up Kent Smith, dashed away in a Nash sedan. But the program is sponsored by Ford.—Mel Silver, Brooklyn. [That's no boner. Ford probably was making a subtle point.—ED.]

More Boner Reporters

John Caragias, Irvington, N. J.: On Plainclothesman a "dead" man got up and walked away when the camera inadvertently caught him.

Mrs. P. Murmer, Elizabeth, N. J.: Casey, Crime Photographer, snapped a picture of two men, kneeling and beating a third on the floor. But when we saw the developed picture, all the men were standing up. Some camera!

Stephen Pelletiere, Brooklyn: On The Alärich Family, Sept. 14, Henry, Homer and Charlie all complained they didn't have any money. But then Henry made a call from a telephone booth. What did he use—a slug?

Harriet Gay Scharf, Ramsey, N. J.: On Faye Emerson's program, September 15, a soda jerker, meaning to heap praise on the show's sponsor, Pepsi-Cola, gave the plug to Coca-Cola!

Every Other Brooklyn Home

Many, many thanks for the swell layout on Red Barber and Vince Scully donating blood. If the comments I have received are any indication, TV GUIDE must go into every second home here in Brooklyn! Your interest and cooperation means a great deal to the success of our efforts.—Roy Popkin, Director of Public Information, American National Red Cross, Bklyn.

The Only Brain?

In answer to Mrs. Van Derbyn, who thinks Miss Kilgallen has the answers on What's My Line, it's plain to me that Dorothy is the only member of the panel with a brain. She takes notes constantly on the answers to all the questions and that accounts for her remarkable deductions. It's these notes that she looks at on her desk before she gives the right answer.—Mrs. F. A., Teaneck, N. J. [Hmnnnn. But don't you think Arlene Francis is charming?—ED.]

The Three Beers

On Saturday night Peggy Lee gave praise on Ken Murray's show to Budweiser Beer and sat and drank it. A few minutes later on ❹, she was singing "My beer is Rheingold the dry beer." Which is it, Peggy?—Sallie Richner, Goshen, N. Y. [Schaefer, maybe?—ED.]

Quick Answers to Your Queries

Teddy Miller, West Orange, N. J.: Down You Go is now seen on Friday, 9:00 p.m., (5). Rose Santore, New Haven, Conn.: Mel Torme now has his own color TV show Monday through Friday, 4:30 p.m., (2). He is 26 years old. Jane Rubin, Manhattan: Lee Tracy has never been a real-life newspaper reporter. George Posoulis, Newark: Toby Sommers is 14 years old. Diana Morse, New York City: Eileen Wilson used to sing with Skitch Henderson and Les Brown.

TV Twosomes

What do you think of the following couple nominations: Best Looking: Dave Barry and Mary Sinclair. Cutest: Darren McGavin (Casey) and Francey Lane. Sexiest Voice: Captain Braddock of Racket Squad and Julie Stevens of Big Town. Best Dressed: Steve Allen and Faye Emerson. Best Figure: Buster Crabbe and Roxanne. —Mrs. Bernie Bandel, Union City, N. J.

More Convenient Guide

I am a regular subscriber to your magazine and I would like to make a suggestion about your morning schedule. It is annoying to have to go back and find this page. Why not print it on back of a picture so that we may cut it out and keep it until the current day? I think your magazine is very informative except for this one pet peeve. —Mrs. Catherine Vassalo, Brooklyn. [What we'd rather do is dispense with the daytime department and print each day's program complete. This will be done as soon as TV GUIDE increases its number of pages per issue. Meanwhile, may we suggest this solution to your problem: Use an ordinary paper clip, clipping the proper pages each day so that you turn naturally from the daytime listing to the particular day of the week on which you happen to be viewing.—ED.]

Hot Time Tonight

Bill Gregson, on the Twenty Questions commercial, said about Mennen's deodorant, "It will check odor and perspiration around the clock." First I ever knew that clocks perspired.—Virginia Watson Reeve, Toms River, N. J.

Forced to Watch Slapstick?

Granted that television must be commercial in order to keep its head above water. However, that's no reason why we've got to watch a lot of silly, cheap slapstick or "entertainment," as you put it. What's wrong with something halfway intelligent? — Julian Einstein, Brooklyn. [You've "got" to listen, as you put it, to nothing. And there are many "half-way intelligent" and even 100% intelligent shows on TV.—ED.]

That New Martin Kane

Lloyd Nolan as Martin Kane has one of his frequent brushes with gun-toting characters.

You'll never believe what Lloyd Nolan's real name is

In the past 20 years, Lloyd Nolan, who plays the title role in Martin Kane, Private Eye (Thursday, 10-10:30 p.m., 4 6), has made 60 movies. While he has sometimes acted underworld characters, most of his roles have been as public or private defender of the law.

Which is one obvious reason for the smooth authority he brings to his performance as Martin Kane. Another and more fundamental reason is that Mr. Nolan happens to be, in his quiet, understating way, one of our most dependable actors.

Lloyd Nolan (that's his real name) was born in San Francisco August 11, 1903, the son of a shoe manufacturer. He attended Stanford University, then joined the Pasadena Community Theater, where one of his young colleagues was Victor Jory.

Then, after roles in a couple of road companies of Broadway hits, he worked as a stage hand in Cape Cod's Dennis Theater, where one of the ushers was a young woman named Bette Davis.

After that Nolan appeared in New York with The Cape Cod Follies, which proved to be an instantaneous flop.

His next engagement was in Hoboken where he played the hero in the revival of The Blue and the Gray, or War is Hell. This ran six-and-a-half weeks.

Then Cleveland, where he played stock with Helen Hayes and Pat O'Brien.

The following winter he was in New York again in Sweet Stranger, playing an office boy. He fell in love with Mell Efird, who played a stenographer. When the show closed, they were married. Today they have a daughter, Melinda Joyce, born in 1940, and a son, Jay, born in 1943.

After his marriage, Lloyd did another season of stock and another session at Cape Cod. Then, following two minor Broadway roles, came the turning point in his career. He joined the cast of One Sunday Afternoon which ran on Broadway for 43 weeks. It was in this play that he made his first big hit, and was tested and brought to Hollywood by Paramount.

Meet the Beverly Hillbillies

Among Nolan's movies for major studios have been: Michael Shayne, Private Detective; Guadalcanal Diary; A Tree Grows in Brooklyn; The House on 92nd Street; Street With No Name, and The Lemon Drop Kid.

Nolan admits to no one hobby in particular, although golf ranks high on his list of preferences. He does go in for horseback riding, golf, swimming, and handball. He has a Boxer named Shansie.

He studied piano for four years but admits he can't play the darned thing. He and his wife were probably Hollywood's most enthusiastic square dancers. They were responsible for introducing the movie colony to this pastime. The Nolans had their own group which they called the Beverly Hillbillies.

Nolan is 5-feet-10½ and weighs 175 pounds. He has grey hair and brown eyes.

Boxing's New Czar is a Friend of TV

ONE of these days we're going to interview Bob Christenberry, new boxing czar for N. Y., on the subject: TV and prize fights. The other night he told us he has only the warmest of feelings for our favorite medium. His opinion is that some day every fight will be televised, which is good news for us fight fans.

According to latest statistics, baseball box office took a dive during the 1951 season, and we can expect critics to blame it all on TV. They should realize that baseball has recently made more money than ever before because of TV.

Fans write us: That they abhor sorehead Dodger fans who wrote those letters to Boston's Tommy Holmes. . . . That they'd like to see more live football games than are now seen. . . . That Nat Holman really is the best-dressed gent in sports. . . . That they hope the track meets will again be televised from the Garden.

How'd you like the opening sessions of the Tenpin Stars bowling program? We thought it was a good thing for local keglers. . . . Fans also seem to be enjoying the Friday night football highlights seen on ⓫. . . . Somebody should give Roy Campanella an award for Most Injured Player. Maybe the American Medical Association. . . . We never thought the day would come when Bill Terry would pick the Dodgers to win. But that's what he did on our program one night.

TV GUIDE's cover dog, Rocky, will be entered in the Garden dog show this fall. Now that baseball fans have recovered from the severe heart strain of that rough season, they can move over and let the football addicts take over the Excitement Ward. . . . We'll pick Yale to beat Cornell this week.

Mel Allen plans to do plenty of fishing in the lake on his Bedford Village place.

Don't Let Your Antenna Kill You

You should know about the dangers of power lines and lightning

Your set can be wrecked, you and members of your family can receive painful shocks and burns, your house can be set on fire—all because of an improperly installed antenna.

The main danger usually arises from the antenna's nearness to electric power lines. For, if your antenna should fall against a live power wire, the stray current that would then be conducted through the building could take a path (such as through plumbing or heating pipes) that could electrocute or severely burn a person within and set the building on fire.

What is a dangerous installation? No matter how securely attached to a firm base your antenna may seem, it is a peril if it is put up within a few feet of a power line—or by means of supporting guy lines that cross a power line—or on a pole that could fall across a power line.

And when an antenna near power lines is fixed to a loose or crumbling chimney, or with bolts whose threads have been stripped by over-tightening, or with insecure guy lines—then, obviously, the danger is great and immediate.

While some communities have laws designed specifically to insure the safe installation of antennas, New York City has none. But whether or not such laws exist, a serviceman should carefully observe common-sense rules. He should make sure that the antenna clears all power lines, and that the bolts, turnbuckles and bases of attachment are secure.

How about the danger from lightning? The presence of an antenna on your roof increases only slightly the chances of your building being struck—and then only because the antenna increases the over-all height of your dwelling.

Placing the arrester

However, unless the lead-in conductors are enclosed in a continuous metal shield that is permanently and effectively grounded, it is wise to have a lightning arrester installed. But, if you follow the advice of the National Fire Protection Association, you will not have the arrester on the antenna. Such an installation may leave the set entirely without protection.

The arrester should be located on the transmission line at a point near the ground, or as close to the ground as the receiver, either inside or outside the building. Next time your serviceman turns up, ask him to check this for you.

Dig at Doug

★ Note to Doug Edwards: We catch your news every night and like both your content and your manner, but couldn't somebody tell your Washington man to send you films with more competent handling of photography and sound? We realize correspondent-photographers work under the pressure of speed, poor lighting and no sound-proofing, but the Washington films, consistently poor, need craftsmanship.

★ Walter Winchell's column calls Mary Kaye of WNBT a "blondiful charmer" and a "dollypop." We like her, too—for an additional reason. At the close of ❹'s televising each night, she makes her plans for next day's televiewing—from TV GUIDE.

★ Newies: The thumbs appear to be down for Actor's Hotel (Tues., 10 p.m., ❼) but up for chanteuse Nellie Golette (Thurs., 7 p.m., ❾).

★ Speaking of improving your mind—and your perspective—get hold of the new book, The Nature of Things, by TV's own Dr. Roy K. Marshall (illustrations by Jon Gnagy). The good doctor presents the story of the universe as the yarn it really is—the world's most exciting story.

★ The regular appearance of Ezio Pinza on TV will show what a good voice should really be and may even expose some of the phonies who now pose as singers.

★ Some of the best movies are ruined by bad cutting jobs. We understand the necessity for compressing these old classics into TV's one hour production unit, but it sometimes seems that the slashing cuts might be made with more discretion.

★ We are never troubled when people get shot on television. The revolver's report always sounds somewhat less impressive than a cap pistol. (What are we saying? If they give us realistic pistol shots, they'll bust our set.)—HAROLD B. CLEMENKO

Here and There: If you watched Fireside Theater last Tuesday, you probably remarked how much Mary Castle, who starred in Treasure of the Heart, looks like Rita Hayworth. The 20-year-old Texan is often taken for Rita by tourists in Hollywood restaurants. Mary was signed by Columbia for a starring build-up after Rita left for Europe, and for six months spent six hours a day studying speech, stage routines, dancing, fencing and the rest. Then Rita returned, and the studio released Mary. Her movies have included roles opposite Jon Hall in When the Redskins Rode and Pat O'Brien in Criminal Lawyer. . . . January is now given as the month for Marie Wilson to bow in the video version of My Friend Irma. . . . Ed Herlihy gets accolades in the current Look for his threefold career in TV, radio and the movies. (He's emcee of The Children's Hour and Date in Manhattan on video; the voice of Universal Newsreels in the movies; and is, of course, emcee on radio too of The Children's Hour, which is simulcast. . . . Sid Caesar and his wife are expectant parents. . . . In September, according to Hugh Beville, NBC Director of Research, there were 13,556,000 TV sets in use nationally. This represents about 31 percent of all U.S. homes. Set installations have increased 6,026,300 in one year. . . . Jan Murray has paid the Paramount Theater $400 in damages for indulging his hobby. During his recent engagement there, he was wont to practice weight-lifting in his dressing room between shows. One day while hoisting a 250-pound barbell, he sneezed. The barbell crashed to the floor, cracking it and dropping part of the ceiling in the room below. . . . There are some excellent television and other electronics definitions given in the new Webster's New World Dictionary. Not that it's a technical work—it's an up-to-the-minute general dictionary. . . . Walter Winchell reports that a crackdown on TV repair racketeers is high on the agenda of the District Attorney's office.

Claire Mann's Glamour Wire: Have a facial pick-up. Only takes one minute. We all need it now on account of new winds and old suntans. Splash hot water over face, make-up and all. Then smooth on cold cream and whisk off dirt. Apply cold cream again, remove with tissue. Finish with a bracing splash of cold water. This gives you the warmth, massage, cleansing and stimulation needed for glamorous skin. A minute a day keeps the wrinkles away.

Don't Follow the Leader!

A video beauty expert gives you six valuable tips

By Richard Willis

(Here's Looking at You, Monday-through-Friday, 3:15-3:30 p.m., 4)

ACHIEVING beauty and harmony in make-up and dress is an individual problem. All truly beautiful women study themselves and coordinate their make-up and clothes to their own facial features and personality. They do not follow blindly the dictates of fashion. They are not carbon copies. The intelligent woman adapts new trends to suit herself, whenever possible. But she has the courage and good sense to discard new hair styles, make-up tricks and fashions that are not right for her. She doesn't play "follow the leader."

Because beauty is individual, it is difficult to give a list of rules which will suit everyone. But here are six basic good-grooming precepts for all:

1. All make-up bases should be applied sparsely. Too much powder base on the skin will make it look older. Make-up bases are advantageous as tints but they are not designed to be cover-alls.

2. Rouge placed high and away from under the eyes is always the safest application. Trying to narrow down your face with rouge may end up making you look theatrical. The less the better!

3. In plucking eyebrows, do not pluck so severely that you change the general contour. A natural look about your brow helps project the eyes without too much eye make-up.

4. Powder should be selected with this thought: Will it enhance my skin?

Richard Willis

Joan Caulfield is among stars Willis has helped.

If the skin is sallow, select your powder to match your skin, with just a slight pink cast. If you have a florid complexion, avoid powders with a pink tone.

Don't attempt to acquire a sun-tanned look with a dark powder, especially if the skin is fair or even medium-fair. The result will be a blotchy appearance on the face wherever you might have a little excess oil, such as around the nostrils, chin and forehead. If you are lucky enough to acquire a good sun-tan, it is best to avoid powder except a little dusting of talc. Let your public enjoy the healthful-looking result.

5. In selecting lipstick, you should consider the texture along with the color.

Those who have a soft-textured lip should be careful not to use a too oily lipstick. Those who have dry lips should select a fairly oily lipstick.

In both cases, work the application into the grain of the lip, with a finger tip or a brush, to insure durability.

6. In selecting hair styles, always consider whether your hair's texture will be adaptable to a particular style. Extremes in texture, very soft or very coarse hair, should usually be worn short.

When very soft hair is worn long, it is inclined to become stringy. Therefore it is best in a short bob with the addition of a permanent to give it body.

Very coarse hair is inclined to become bushy and unmanageable when worn long. It is, therefore, best suited to a short cut, if properly shaped.

All women should avoid extremes in hair style unless they are able to have them cared for professionally and can follow through with a wardrobe to match.

Some recruits far stardam are put thraugh basic training by an instructor at a MacLevy talent school.

Does Your Child Have TV Talent?

The MacLevy Schools and video shows are training hundreds of kids

MONTY MacLevy is founder and proprietor of a coast-to-coast chain of "slenderizing salons." He also owns ballroom dancing schools for adults.

But he is also the operator of an expanding undertaking that may well prove to be of huge help in stocking the talent reservoir of show business. This is his group of MacLevy Talent Schools for children.

With 50 of them going full blast in the New York metropolitan area, he plans to make them a national institution, with branches in Boston, Washington, Chicago and Los Angeles starting things off next January.

MacLevy goes on the principle that children should be not only trained, but seen. This is realized through MacLevy Video Productions, which produces three shows stocked exclusively with talent from the MacLevy Schools.

These are Make Believe Time (Saturday, 6-6:30 p.m., 13) and TV Clubhouse (Saturday, 6:30-7 p.m., (13) and Magic Door (Sunday, 2-2:30 p.m., (11)).

A good number of MacLevy graduates have gone on to other TV shows, among them The Paul Whiteman TV Teen Club, Sunset Star Theater and The Children's Hour.

Two contest shows

MacLevy Video Productions also produce two adult TV shows. One is Dance to Fame (Sunday, 10:30-11 p.m., (9)), a dance contest show sponsored by MacLevy Dance Studios. The other is Video Venus (Saturday, 10:30-11 p.m., (7)), in which eight girls, all non-professionals, sing and dance each week in competition for prizes.

In the MacLevy Talent Schools, the curriculum is designed first to develop the child's personality and then to train his natural talent. "See that the child is well adjusted," says MacLevy, "give him a means of self-expression, and the rest will come."

Something Fishy on TV

This hobby has been gaining friends through video

Irving Straus shows Faye Emerson an aquarium end table.

IRVING STRAUS, 29, is rapidly becoming one of the dominant figures in an industry that boasts 10,000,000 enthusiasts. He's in the fish business—tropical fish.

Tying in with "America's fastest-growing hobby," Straus owns the Westchester Aquarium in White Plains, which is the country's largest retail tropical-fish firm. He also operates the Tropical Fish of the Month Club, which has members in almost every state, Canada, Hawaii and Alaska.

Mr. Straus has in the past year become an increasingly familiar figure on TV as guest of Ed and Pegeen Fitzgerald, Steve Allen, Faye Emerson, Kathi Norris, Tex and Jinx McCrary, Robert Q. Lewis and many other video notables.

On these appearances Straus recounts quaint and curious facts about his finny friends. He also demonstrates some of the ingenious pieces of furniture into which fish tanks can be built—and are built by his Westchester Aquarium.

Fish that really fly

To get a steady supply of fish from the warm waters of the Pacific, Straus has shipments flown to the U. S. every week. And he has spotters in all the warm-water areas of the world constantly on the lookout for new and unusual specimens. A good many of them (the fish, that is) wind up swimming happily about in his furniture—and on television.
